Terry Swenson, DMin, MDiv, serves as Campus Chaplain and an Associate Professor of the School of Religion for Loma Linda University. Working with young people has been a constant focus throughout his pastoral ministry. The opportunity to focus his ministry on students at a university level attracted him to his current position seventeen years ago.

Terry obtained his Doctor of Ministry degree from George Fox University, Oregon with an emphasis in the areas of postmodernism, cross-cultural and global interactions and leadership. He is a sought after national and international speaker. Terry is also a published author. His book is entitled, "Interlace: The Circle of Belonging".

He is married to the former Marian Sanker for the past thirty-five years and the proud parents of four children, Jasmine (LLU SDH), Mia, Crystal and Jared and grandfather to Ace.

My Thoughts: My vision for campus ministries at Loma Linda University is that every student who leaves Loma Linda University would become a fully devoted Christian with a vibrant relationship with Jesus Christ. At the least, I want them to leave knowing that there is a God who loves them deeply and longs to be intimately involved in their lives. And that He wants to life through them to transform the world.*
